Gary,

Responding to the three questions your management team raised on the tenant. I've pulled what I have from the executed lease, the seller's documents, and the public record (Michelin Guide, Westchester press coverage, and the restaurant's own representations). Where there's a gap I've called it out and proposed a path to close it.

1. Are there any financials we can review? If so, please provide them.

Short answer: I do not have the tenant's audited or unaudited financial statements in hand today. The executed lease (Article 4, Insurance; Article 5, Use) does NOT contain a tenant financial reporting covenant — meaning the prior landlord (Depack Properties II LLC) had no contractual right to request tenant P&L, tax returns, or balance sheet, and accordingly none was delivered.

What I CAN provide on tenant payment performance:

- Lease in force since October 15, 2021 — 4 years and 7 months in occupancy as of today.
- Rent escalations have been paid on schedule through the year-5 step (current monthly base rent $7,458.90, increasing contractually to $7,719.96/mo on October 15, 2026).
- Initial $25,000 Key Money paid at lease execution (Article 3.A) plus $13,000 two-month security deposit (Article 3.E) — tenant remains current.
- Article 28 of the lease requires the security deposit to be replenished annually by 3.5% — tenant compliance with this is one of the audit items I'm requesting from seller (Rider §4(h) and §5 give me the right to obtain 24 months of bank statements and rent receipts).
- Tenant pays 100% of property tax INCREASES above the 2022 base year per Article 3.D (additional rent). I am requesting the seller's accounting of these escalations as part of the diligence punch list to my attorney.

What I'm doing to close the gap, if your underwriters require it:

- I will reach out to Marc Taxiera (Chef/Owner) directly to request at least the most recent two years of restaurant P&L (likely Schedule C or LLC K-1 plus internal management reports). My experience with owner-operator restaurants is that they will share these for a refinance or a building purchase but typically not as a routine matter. I will frame it as TFCU requiring it to issue the loan.
- As a fallback I can provide bank deposit verification from Marc's restaurant operating account (this is a common ask in this kind of credit decision and most owner-operators can produce 12 months of statements within a week).
- If the goal is to validate the tenant's ability to pay the in-place rent on a coverage basis, I'd note that the rent-to-revenue ratio implied by a healthy 2,600 SF restaurant doing $1.5M-$2.5M+ annual revenue (typical for a Michelin-recognized, OpenTable-listed Italian restaurant in this submarket) would put the $89,500 annual rent at roughly 4-6% of revenue — well inside the 8-10% rule of thumb for industry rent-to-revenue health.

Please let me know whether your underwriters will accept (a) tenant payment history (audit from seller) plus bank deposit verification, OR whether they require (b) full P&L statements from the tenant. The ask drives my outreach to Marc.

2. When did the restaurant open? Does the owner have any previous restaurant ownership experience?

Opening Date:

- Lease commenced October 15, 2021 (5-month rent-abatement buildout period through March 15, 2022).
- Restaurant opened to the public in June 2022, per the Mamaroneck Observer's profile of the restaurant's Michelin Guide inclusion.
- In continuous operation since opening — approximately 4 years as of May 2026.

Owner/Operator Background — Marc Taxiera, Chef & Co-Owner:

- Husband-and-wife operating team — Marc Taxiera runs the kitchen; his wife Brianne Myers runs the front of house. Both have decades of fine-dining experience in Manhattan.
- Marc Taxiera's prior experience includes Executive Chef of the Russian Tea Room (one of New York's most iconic and longest-running fine-dining institutions) and Executive Chef of Beppe (a critically acclaimed seasonal Italian restaurant in Manhattan, well-regarded in trade press during its operating years).

- This is Marc's first ownership venture. The restaurant is named for his grandfather Augustine, a WWII veteran.

Restaurant Recognition (relevant to going-concern value and re-let risk):

- Michelin Guide listed (2023 Michelin Guide and continuing) — one of relatively few Michelin Guide restaurants in Westchester County.
- Wine Spectator Award winner.
- USA Today "Best in America" recognized destination.
- "Best of Westchester" winner.
- Active OpenTable reservation system, current Yelp / Tripadvisor / Google ratings consistently in the 4.5+ range across hundreds of reviews — strong indicators of a stable, mature operating business rather than a marginal restaurant tenant.

From a tenant-quality underwriting standpoint, this profile (4+ years of operating history, fine-dining pedigree of the principals, Michelin Guide recognition, healthy review velocity, and demonstrated rent payment) is materially stronger than a typical mom-and-pop restaurant tenant.

3. If the tenant were to vacate, how long would you expect it to take to fill this space?

Estimated re-let timeline: 6 to 12 months for a turnkey relet to a comparable restaurant operator, or 4 to 8 months if priced at market for a wider use class. Below is the basis for that range.

Factors supporting a fast re-let:

- Fully built-out turnkey restaurant — the space includes a large commercial kitchen, walk-in refrigeration, hood and grease trap, private dining room, and complete furniture/fixtures/equipment package (Article 3.A of the existing lease conveyed $25,000 of FF&E with the property). A replacement restaurant tenant avoids ~$300K-$500K+ of buildout cost, which materially shortens both decision time and rent negotiation.
- Location quality — 213-215 Halstead is directly across from the Mamaroneck Metro-North station (one of the highest-volume New Haven Line stops in Westchester), on the corner of Mamaroneck Avenue (locally known as "Restaurant Row"), with a Walk Score of 96 ("Walker's Paradise"). Vehicle traffic ~8,000/day on Halstead and ~18,000/day on Mamaroneck Avenue.

- Demographics — 1-mile median household income $127,542 (17,401 population); 3-mile $176,275 (81,567 population); ~35,000 daytime employees. This is one of Westchester's stronger restaurant submarkets, with limited vacancy historically.
- Restaurant Special Permit is required under Mamaroneck Village C-2 Central Commercial zoning — the existing permit is currently in lapsed status and will need renewal regardless of tenant identity (I've budgeted $15K-$20K for this cure with seller-credit and seller-indemnity sought; relevant to all scenarios). Once renewed, a replacement restaurant tenant can step into the use approval.

Factors that could extend the timeline:

- Single-tenant restaurant deals in Westchester typically take 6-12 months to lease at market when the prior tenant departs without an assignment to a successor. Crexi/LoopNet inventory for comparable Mamaroneck/Larchmont restaurant space typically shows 4-9 months of marketing time before lease commencement; another 60-90 days of build-back/cosmetic refresh is typical before opening.
- If a replacement tenant requires substantial buildout (a non-restaurant use, e.g., retail or service), expect an additional 90-180 days for permitting and tenant improvements.

Built-in tenant-side liquidity mitigants in the existing lease:

- Two-month security deposit ($13,000) plus 3.5% annual replenishment — covers approximately 1.5-2 months of base rent and partial OpEx.
- Lease Article 18 (Assignment & Subletting) requires landlord consent but permits assignment to a successor restaurant of comparable quality — meaning if Marc and Brianne decided to wind down voluntarily, an orderly assignment to a buyer of the goodwill is likely faster than a clean re-let.
- Article 38 (Right of First Refusal) and Article 28 (security deposit) provisions both signal that the tenant has demonstrated long-term commitment to the location — this is consistent with the 4+ years of continuous operation and the capital invested in the buildout and brand.

Stress-test view of carrying-cost exposure during a 12-month dark period:

- Monthly debt service @ TFCU $689K / 6.5% / 30-yr = $4,355/mo
- Monthly landlord carry (taxes + insurance) = ~$1,650/mo (taxes $11,007/yr ÷ 12 + insurance $720/mo equivalent)
- Total monthly carrying cost if tenant fully dark = ~$6,005/mo, or ~$72,000 for a full 12 months
- Personal liquidity carry (David Goldoff, Guarantor) — exceeds 12-month PITI coverage requirement after closing per the Personal Liquidity tab of the REO Schedule.

Bottom line: a re-let within 6-12 months is realistic, and even a 12-month full dark scenario is within the Guarantor's personal liquidity coverage on a fully amortizing 30-year structure.

Happy to walk through any of this on a call. Please confirm which underwriting items from item (1) above you need me to pursue — bank deposit verification vs. full tenant P&L — and I'll move on it this week.

Best regards,
